This new bill is to be introduced on or before next Tuesday and will take the place of the Blaine bill, now relegated to the background, according to progressive republican members.

Madison.—The progressive republican caucus held last night on call of Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., decided to sidetrack Governor Blaine's general income tax bill, and directed the finance committee of the legislature to draft a new revenue measure, it was learned Wednesday morning from those who attended.

WITH THE FARMERS

Farm Bureau Official Information

CURB HOG LOSSES BY FEDERAL PLAN

Proper Sanitation and Change of Hog Lots Means Saving Litters.

Swine breeders of southern Wisconsin will be urged to adopt the McLean county hog sanitation system when the time comes for fall litters. The plan will be tried out by several progressive breeders and feeders in a demonstration to test whether the system has sufficient merit to be put into effect generally in and near Rock county.

It may be many years before breeders experience such adverse conditions as were general during early March and then again the unfavorable weather may come again next spring. However it is the general opinion that no sanitation system would have stopped the losses caused to the spring litters from the cold weather and the inability to exercise the young pigs.

There is nothing technical about the so-called McLean county system.

Losses From Worms.

Many Rock county farmers are attempting to raise breeding and market hogs under most unfavorable conditions. The roundworm is causing heavy losses and year after year some farmers are using the same hog lots, infested with the worms, and wonder why their pigs "do not do well." No pig that is worm infested is going to put on flesh to a profitable advantage.

The secret behind the government system put into effect among a string of farmers in the Illinois county is good, common-sense sanitation. When hogs are raised in roundworm-free main problem is to get rid of the infection.

Will Show Films.

Films will be shown in the high school later this summer and lectures given by Dr. J. P. Porell and others on how best to eradicate the pig lot curse-roundworms. Clean pens, yards, hot water and lye are the cheap weapons that can all be referred by the farmer if the litters of thrift pigs can be obtained. There is not profit in wormy pigs, runs and they say they save better than 90 percent of the litters where the system is in effect.

"When swine are fed efficient, well-balanced rations, including animal by-products and either good pasture or alfalfa hay, there is usually no need of using any mineral supplement except common salt," reads a bulletin sent out by the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment station, Madison. Experiments covering a period of more than two years are taken to prove this claim.

"On the other hand, when swine are fed on grain and grain by-products alone, or on grain with such supplements as linseed oil, soybeans, or soybean oil, without pasture or without legume hay, then it will be advantageous to add a mineral supplement supplying additional calcium or lime. However, even when a mineral supplement is added to a ration made up of grain and grain by-products, the results will be unsatisfactory compared with those from a ration including animal by-products such as skim milk, butter-milk or tankage. This is because grain and grain by-products are not only lacking in mineral matter, especially lime, but they are also deficient in proteins of good quality, which are required to produce rapid growth and thrifty offspring.

"It is well known that pigs frequently become crippled or stunted during growth, or become crippled on shipment to market. Brood sows also often break down while suckling their pigs. These troubles are due in part at least to a lack of minerals in their rations."

Correct Feeding Days.

Some trouble has been experienced in Rock county with hairless pigs. Feeding added to the ration of pregnant sows is stated to be the best preventative of this disease. There is no positive proof, it is declared, that there is any benefit from adding to the ration of pregnant sows in the prevention of hairless pigs.

For feeding to swine with ear corn or shelled corn and proper protein supplements any one of the following mixtures may be used. There is at the present time no definite information as to just which one of these mineral mixtures will give the best results.

(1) Equal parts by weight of ground limestone and salt, or equal parts of wood ashes and salt. These supply calcium but no appreciable amount of phosphorus.

(2) Equal parts of ground limestone, salt, and either bone meal or ground rock phosphate. This furnishes both calcium and phosphorus.

(3) Nine parts of either bone meal or ground rock phosphate and one part tankage for flavoring. These mixtures also furnish both calcium and phosphorus.

So far as is known, these simple mineral mixtures will give as good results as expensive, proprietary preparations.

Pool Meeting Is Called in Orford

Arrangements will be completed Wednesday for a meeting of the Northern Wisconsin Cooperative Tobacco pool to be held in Orfordville, Thursday evening. A big meeting is looked for as the western section of Rock county and an eastern strip of Green county produce considerable good leaf tobacco.

Pool officers who spoke at the Janesville and Edgerton meetings will be on hand for the Orfordville meeting. The Rock county directors will also attend and a good meeting is expected by the pool officers. Growers are taking an interest in the pool since the local buyers are seeking to encourage non-pool members, who stopped growing crops, to plant crops this year.

Seek Patrons' Aid
in New Mail Plan

In order to make the new plan in rural deliveries out of Janesville, successful, hearty cooperation of all patrons is asked by Harry Wasson, president of the Rock County Rural Carriers' association.

Mrs. Wasson has issued the following statement:
"As was seen in the Gazette a few nights ago, the rural carriers at the Janesville postoffice have been put upon a difficult and somewhat unpleasant situation. They are required to come to the postoffice at just 6:45 o'clock each morning to put our letter mail, newspaper mail, parcel mail up in the order, we people, it on our respective routes and have it loaded in our automobiles and ready to leave at precisely 8 o'clock and 15 minutes after each meeting.
This regulation is established, we understand, primarily for the benefit of our rural patrons, so that they will know just when to expect the rural carrier at each patron's box, and so that the time of the patron will not be wasted by having to wait for the rural carrier or by missing the rural carrier, he having gone by earlier than the usual time. The usual time now is a fixed schedule time and unless an accident happens or some unusual cause is the reason for the delay the rural carrier may be expected right on the dot. We rural carriers are expected to keep to the schedule and will certainly do so unless unavoidably prevented.
It is important that the patrons co-operate with us, however, if we are not to get behind our schedule.
They should be at the box promptly and prepared to transmit any business he or she may have with as much dispatch as possible so that we may be quickly on our way to the next station or patron."

Changing College
Faculties Big "Y"
Work in Portugal

Traditions in Portugal made Y. M.
C. A. work difficult there at first, says W. H. Stallings, former secretary of a student branch at Coimbra, that country, now in this city in connection with a city campaign for foreign work funds. Mr. Stallings is on the year furlough that most foreign workers take at a period of every five years.

"We started a student Y. M. C. A. at Coimbra," said Mr. Stallings, "which is now an established success, and which is doing much to aid in good feeling between two nations here which are entirely distinct—students and professors. It seems to have been a tradition there that students have entire charge of the university. Faculties were selected by a vote of the students and when this procedure was changed, both factions at first resented it. This feeling has now been overcome, however, and we feel that that has been our greatest accomplishment."

Mr. Stallings also spoke of the low rate of money exchange. It helps the Y. M. C. A. by coming to this country, making money, then using it in Portugal, where the standard coin that was formerly valued at $1.02 is now worth 1 cent. This low rate works hardship with the natives, who are unable to purchase an American or other foreign-made goods at any but a prohibitive price.

"Portugal is a very proud country and lives more in its past than its present. It worships all the old heroes of history who gave the country such an illustrious name at one time, and looks upon all Americans as upstarts not worthy of respect." Mr. Stallings returned to his home in Chicago, Wednesday.

"The Isle of Lost Ships" By Crittenden Marriott
WITH MILTON SILLS, ANNA Q. NILSSON, FRANK CAMPEAU AND WALTER LONG
Each new wreck adds castaways, desperate men—and once in a while a woman—and she by common law must marry within a day, choosing her mate from among the rabble! The man she takes must defend his possession—fight for the prize—hold her by right of might!
To this island drift a millionaire's daughter, a New York detective and his prisoner, an ex-naval officer accused of murder—sole survivors of a wreck!
And although she would ransom her fortune for reprieve she must obey the law! Two men want her! The brute who is czar of this ghostly realm—and the man who is a fugitive from the law—and with the woman-hunger strong in them they do battle for this prize—then greater than all the gold doubloons and glittering jewels that law, in treasure, chests at their command.
PRICES:—Matinees, 15c and 25c; Evenings, 15c and 35c.

Stanley Baldwin, Premier.

Since Asquith went out of office in 1915, the premiership of Great Britain has been in the hands of the commoners and out of the maw of the nobility. "Whatever is done, the successor to Bonar Law must be a commoner," was the concensus of opinion in England before the appointment of the new premier was made. "If eliminated Lord Curzon, who may possess talent and brilliancy and education, but who is mostly made up of dignity, the remembrance that he is not a commoner, and who is a snob of that order offensive to the large labor party element which now holds the balance of power in Great Britain.
If the British empire were to be run on the rocks, Lord Curzon would be the most expert captain to direct the ship. Stanley Baldwin is a commoner. He is a tried man. He came to America with instructions about settling the debt of Britain to America. He did not carry out his instructions because he had a mind of his own and was not a mere messenger. He was criticized in England for the settlement and made a few remarks that were not pleasing to us here, but he was a politician and under the necessity of placating his constituents.

Premier Baldwin has a task for a man of the greatest resources. He may expect no support from Lloyd George nor yet from the Curzon class.
He will be looked upon by the Labor party leaders with suspicion. He has an England with two million unemployed persons. Insofar as being a traditional Englishman is concerned he will not displease nor disappoint anyone. He is all that and innovations are not to be considered other than as expedients to carry out some policy of more than passing importance.

Mr. Bonar Law left nearly everything undone.
He has consistently refused to rock the boat. The Ruhr, the Turkish question, the soviet ultimatum, the unemployment and the commercial stagnation throughout the kingdom, are all about as serious as when Lloyd George was thrown overboard.
Regarding the United States, Mr. Baldwin perhaps occupies a position which might be called "judicial." He cannot be called a very great friend but is more like a business acquaintance.
We shall get along with Mr. Baldwin quite well by minding our own business as in the past.

It may have the oil but Turkey is not getting much mileage out of its gallon.

No Time to Waste $15,000

There is no satisfaction in the decision of the state railroad commission in the matter of the Franklin street viaduct. That viaduct may not be geometrically perfect or a work of art, and the pedestrian may be put out for a moment by having to go around the abutment, but whatever inconvenience there is, is not of the value of $15-000 which the city is called upon to pay if the terms of the state railroad commission's extraordinary decision are accepted.

The city did not place the abutment there; it was built by the railroad. If it is to be removed the railroad should do it and not the taxpayers of Janesville. The new plans call for posts in the center as they are now. The chief objection to the viaduct has been the posts and that the roadway is not wide enough. It is certainly wide enough for any automobile unless driven by some person intoxicated, when no roadway has sufficient width.

But admitting that the city wants the viaduct changed, the abutment removed and all that, there is no money to do the work and a thousand and one other calls for funds are far more emphatic and important.

There is hardly a place in the city where $15-000 could be thrown to the birds so completely as to comply with the railroad commission's peculiar ideas.

The perfect clean-up is to make the back yard look as well as the front of the house.

Frances Willard and the Hall of Fame

No one would have thought some seventy years ago, that the little girl in the pink-ribboned hat, who went to school in Janesville, and whose father was the president of the Rock County Agricultural Society and Mechanics Institute and owned a farm down the river, would some day be a member of the galaxy of notables in America's Hall of Fame. The bust of Frances Willard was unveiled in that hall Tuesday and the little romping girl has taken her place with Lincoln and Hamilton, Henry Ward Beecher, Robert E.
Lee, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Gen. Grant, among the immortal memories of the world's people. The little school house that was her state and her principal for one term when she taught the children of the neighborhood, has become more important than ever with this final act that enrolls the name of Frances Willard for all time on the imperishable scroll of fame.

Trading has commenced on the taxation bills.
It may soon be Dahl-er-day in the assembly.

Down east they are having a strenuous time over daylight saving. Connecticut has passed a law prohibiting such a crime as turning the clock back. In Pennsylvania a bill is before the legislature defining standard time and making it

Rigorous Passport Regulations

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—Most people think they know when and where they were born. They may not know of their own knowledge of course, but they believe that they have dependable information.
They live along from year to year in absolute serenity as to this matter of vital statistics, and then suddenly they discover why such data are designated as "vital." They decide on a hurried trip abroad, or they determine on an altogether leisurely trip and decide that the only important thing to be looked after in advance is the engaging of a steamship passage, and then all at once they learn how important it is to be able to prove such little things as place and time of birth, for they run up against the passport regulations.

The simplest and most satisfactory proof, naturally, is a birth certificate, but how many Americans have them? It is only within the last 20 years that birth registration has become common in the United States, and in only about 25 states is such registration now 90 per cent perfect, according to the authorities.

And when you haven't a birth certificate and are called upon to move where and when you were born you are likely to discover how difficult a little thing such as that can be. Or, if it is not so difficult, you find that it is extremely annoying, or that it takes more time than any other part of your preparation for your journey abroad.

You might find yourself in the predicament of the young woman from California who was in New York and received a cablegram asking her to join her fiancé and his mother in England before a certain date to accompany them on a continental trip. She went to the travel bureau of her hotel and asked that she must have passage on a liner sailing that week. She was amazed when she was asked if she had her passport. She didn't think of that. She was more than amazed when the principal requirement in getting a passport was explained to her—she must produce a birth certificate, or an affidavit to support her own affidavit as to her birthplace.

"Why I live in California and I've just come from there," she said. "I don't think I have a birth certificate and I can't find one out there and get an affidavit before the boat sails." Her indignation knew no bounds. She was a native American. Everybody in her part of California knew she was and anybody could tell that she was so merely by looking at her, and why should she want to lie about it, and such regulations were too absurd and too ridiculous for words! But—the steamer sailed without, the young lady.

Passports are not needed to get out of the United States. The government makes no such requirement of its citizens. However, they are needed when our citizens undertake to land in foreign countries, and steamship companies require them because they do not want passengers who may not be permitted to go ashore at the desired port and the route and therefore have to be carried right back to America again.

And since Americans must have passports in order to travel abroad, the government officials have excellent reasons for the exacting regulations. When the secretary of state issues a pasport he requests, in effect, that foreign governments protect the person to whom it is issued, for whom he vouches as a citizen of the United States. Each country has its own laws, its own and prestige of this government. Accordingly, it is obvious that it must require documentary proof of citizenship before the passport is issued.

In lieu of the birth certificate, the applicant for a passport may submit a baptismal certificate, or the affidavit of some person, preferably a relative, such as a father or mother, brother or sister, but permissibly a friend who has known the applicant since childhood and has known the family so he may swear to his birth in this country. Presumably any individual should be able to produce evidence of this kind, but the trouble arises when it comes to producing it on unexpectedly short notice. It causes delay and annoyance, and the time required to produce such proof has often made necessary the cancellation of passages already booked, and sometimes has resulted in the abandonment of plans to go abroad.

Business men who come east with the idea that the securing of a passport is easy, as it was before the war, and then find themselves in a maze of red tape and regulations, are occasionally issued emergency passports, provided they can supply unquestioned proof that they have urgent business abroad. Or, in the case of other applicants, if it can be proved that their presence abroad is needed for important personal or family reasons, such documents may be issued.

Next in importance to the proof of citizenship in securing the passport is the requirement that the applicant must produce a witness at the pasport agency who will swear that the applicant is the person he represents himself to be. This is not always the easiest thing in the world to do, especially if it must be done in a hurry.

Another thing to be remembered is that a passport is valid only for 12 months. If the holder wishes to go abroad again at the end of the year, he must present his old passport in person, or send it to the passport agency, with a request for its extension, which will then be issued, but only for another twelve-month period, and if he is so much as a day late with his request he will not get the extension.

Naturalized citizens are required to submit their naturalization papers as proof of citizenship.
Women and children under twenty-one years of age may travel on their husbands' or their fathers' passports if the family is traveling alone, must have separate passports.

Passports must be secured for each country which the traveler plans to visit and the fees amount to a tidy sum if the four is extended.
There are also numerous vexatious questions to be answered by the applicants, photographs to be supplied, and other requirements.

On the whole, it is not surprising that there is a demand for some modification of the passport regulations, and that rulings have been made that minimize the requirements to a certain degree.
Secretary of State Hughes, for instance, has held that it will no longer be necessary for an applicant to submit documentary proof as to the objects of his trip abroad. He may indicate the reasons for his trip with one or two words, such as health, recreation, education, visiting relatives, relief work, business, etc.

As to producing birth certificates, identifying witnesses, and the like, officials say it will be impossible to change regulations. There are only certain ways of producing such proof, and there must be proof.

An offense to change the clock to any other time.
Of course if the old clock is slow and a man should get up at five when the clock should register six he is liable to be haled to jail. Daylight saving should be a matter up to a community. It is not workable without much disturbance unless it is general. As the farmer will never accept it voluntarily, and these reasons seem perfectly satisfactory it will hardly be made a general law.
The alarm clock is still legal.

Until Henry Ford acquired $200,000,000 in cash from one, a rattle was always considered a child's toy.

In 1912, of each dollar produced in this country, 6.36 per cent went for taxes. In 1921 this had been raised to 16.7 per cent of the nation's yearly production. Every person worked 61 days out of 365 to pay the taxes levied against him if he were in a gainful occupation. And there is no effort in the states to avoid the danger point where government will absorb the individual in tax.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

LIFE placed a day within my hand,
A day which dawned with beauty clear.
I heard a robin singing near,
Saw sunlight dance across the land, Romed with my little children, and Was greeted by a smile of cheer.
No sorrow came to cause a tear,
I did the task which I had planned, I walked the highways up and down,
Met friends who stopped to talk with me,
And when at last I turned from town
The twinkling lights of home to see.
That day was spent, And, if you please,
I gloried in its purchases.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

A LITTLE SLICE O' LIFE.

A lady in our neighborhood Decided to clean house.
And get rid of the junk That cluttered up the place.
So she called in a junk man,
And he took a lot of stuff
And put it on his wagon.
And drove away inmediately.
Among the articles taken Was an old-fashioned desk Which had little secret drawers.
A week later the junk man Returned and rang the bell.
And held in his hand a bundle.
It contained a rope of pearls Which was of considerable value.
The lady had not missed it.
He said, "I found this
In one of the secret drawers Of the old desk, and here it is.
I wouldn't keep it for anything."
The lady thanked him kindly And took the necklace from him And went and hid it in a bunk.
In a safety deposit box.
P. S. This never happened.

Two old settlers sat smoking in a cabin far away in the backwoods of the frontier presen-ever graced that settlement, and domestic arrangements were primitive and crude.
The conversation drifted from politics to cooking, and one of the confirmed bachelors said, "If there were cooking books once, but I never could do nothing with it."
"Too much fancy work about it," asked the other.
"You've struck it. Every one of them recipes begun in the same way. 'Take a clean dis-' and that settled me at once."

Dollar gasoline may be discouraging, but small salaries people who simply must own automobiles to safeguard their social positions will manage to buy it somehow, and how well the oil men know that!

Who's Who Today

GEORGE R. JAMES.

George R. James, Memphis, Tenn., merchant, is the newest member of the federal reserve board. His appointment to succeed John S.
Mitchell of St. Louis was announced a few days ago.

James rendered valuable service with governmental agencies dealing with industrial matters during and after the war. He was chief of the cotton and cotton industry section of the war industries board from March to September 1918. For a time in 1919 he served as a member of the industrial board of the department of commerce and in the year served as a member of the industrial conference, called at the capital.

James was born Sept. 12, 1868, in Memphis. He received a public school education and then went to work for the James and Graham Wagon Co., of Memphis and three years later became its president.
He has been in charge of goods companies, banks and a stockyards company. He served one term as member of the city council in Memphis.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Water Power.

The proposal now before the Wisconsin Legislature to prohibit the development of water power by private interests for a period of six years while the state investigates the advisability of state ownership, is a measure deserving of the attention of every citizen.

It attracts such attention for a deeper reason than the mere meaning of the measure itself.
Under our primary election law men are not now selected by their fellow citizens to become candidates for political office because of past notoriety, but rather the most self-assurance selects himself to be a candidate.
Such self appointment is usually preceded by some startling declaration, political proposal or accusation against those in office. These tactics are designed to buy notoriety, and get the name of the proposed candidate in the newspaper.

The past few years of experience under the primary law has demonstrated that it makes little difference to these self-appointed leaders how unsound or unjust their declarations may be, so long as they result in the public sale of this present bill looks much like a proposal of that kind. Certainly no thoughtful and genuine leader would propose such a measure.
It has too many of the earmarks of political charlatanry to spring from a worthy purpose.

We trust that its intent is so fully exposed upon its face, that the Legislature will not be fooled into its passage, or the public fooled by its real purpose.—Wausau Record Herald.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

May 23, 1883.—The Memorial day parade will form at one o'clock, on Main street. Rev. D. P.
Davies will give the oration of the day. Mrs. J. B.
Ray will give a reading, and Major S. S.
Rockwood a poem, while Dr. J. B. Whiting has been chosen one of the day with authority to select his own aids.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

May 23, 1893.—Telegraphers here on the Northwestern road are some of the 1,000 that have walked out for higher pay. Passenger trains are running on the but all freight cars are delayed.—The long-looked-for party of the Concordia Society will come off tonight at the hall.
—Prof. Cooley, superintendent of schools, has refused the offer of $1,800 for the coming year.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

May 23, 1903.—Abraham Benes, this city, has started a drive for funds to aid Russian Jews, stricken in their home town of Kishineff.
More than $30 has already been contributed.
Janesville Traction company and Southern Wisconsin Traction company are both petitioning the council for franchises to go through the main streets.

TEN YEARS AGO

May 23, 1913.—John Brown, in police service for 24 years, assistant chief, and oldest man on the force, handed in his resignation.
Arthur Brown, secretary of the Fire and Police commission today. His plans are uncertain, although he will enter some business.—Milwaukee avenue, now all macadamized, will be opened to traffic next week.

LET US GIVE THANKS.

Blessing and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honor, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever.—Revelation 7:12.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

According to some magazines, sweating is a very unattractive function and no gentleman would ever be caught at it.
But as it may, a man has to do some sweating and somehow or other to keep as well as can be expected and as this as symmetry demands, it is all very well for a man to live by his wits, which means to let somebody else sweat for him, as Tom Sawyer whitewashed his aunt's fence, provided one arranges a time and place in one's daily program to do a little sweating. This duty of sweating is like wearing suspenders. A man doesn't wear his suspenders in an obtrusive manner nor affect garish colors any more, but he may wear them when he is fully dressed, with an air of quiet assurance.

It used to be quite the fashion, and still is, to visit a bath or some such place and have a vigorous or passive sweat to "sweat the poisons out." Folks who take such a notion seriously have probably not been attentive to the study of physiology in school. One may sweat and sweat and sweat, but the poisons are not just water with a pinch of salt, nothing in the nature of poison. The fancied benefit obtained from such sweating is imaginary, or at least and can certainly not be attributed to the elimination of any poison.

Active sweating is a different story.
I do not mean to say that when one sweats through physical activity there is any appreciable amount of poison or waste matter of any kind eliminated. But active sweating is associated with a marked increase in metabolism, and in the process of oxidation process, that assuredly does burn up and render innocuous a considerable amount of retained waste matter which might otherwise be a poison in the system.

The man who can and does indulge daily in sufficient physical activity, work, play or exercise, to start active sweating, keeps his mind or health which nothing else will give him. I have in mind particularly the accidental man, say a clergyman, an editor or a lawyer. Just how much exercise do such men require, assuming they are, not superannuated or broken down? Well, a fair average tonic dose is about two miles of ox-gen on the hoof three times a day, or six miles in one dose, with the pace sufficiently brisk to induce some sweating. The form of exercise is immaterial, so it induces sweating.

The sweating is the gauge to go by.
Go by sure it takes a considerable amount of time to induce the sweating. I have designated, for others I suggest a substitute which is not nearly so good as oxygen on the hoof, but much better than nothing, the New Brady Symptom, a system of room exercises which a man may do in 15 or 20 minutes a day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Temporal Muscles.

What causes the lump or knot on the side of the face, which shows so plainly when one chews? Have noticed it lately in women more than in men.
(Mrs. A. D. A.)

Answer.—The bulging at the temple is in the temporal muscle, and is that on the angle of the jaw is due to masseter muscle. These muscles lie close to the jaw, and explain the more noticeable in men. The muscles which open and waggle the jaw are the masseter, pterygoid, and the other sex and are concealed under the jaw and in the neck.

Slippers in Alaska.

Is it correct to advise for adults to wear slippers and children to wear socks throughout the winter. In Alaska is it wise for strong healthy adults to wear the same weight of underwear the year around? (Mrs. M.
D.)

Answer.—It is not unhealthful if comfortable.
The early spring plant, popularly known as "Dutchman's breeches," is highly poisonous and has been held responsible for the death of cattle.

In trying to make the work of girls in certain candy factories easier and

Q. Where is Francis Scott Key buried? E. H.

A. The body of Francis Scott Key is interred in the tower cemetery, Frederick, Maryland. On a flag pole placed near a portrait statue of Key the flag flies day and night, contrary to the usual regulations.

Q. How many permanent admirals of the navy have there been? J. P. C.

A. Only two—Admiral David G.
Farragut and Admiral David D. Porter. George Dewey was admiral of the navy, being the only man who was given this title.

Q. What is the difference between chocolate and cocoa? E. H. S.

A. Both are products of the cacao bean, the difference being that more of the butter or fat is removed in making cocoa than in making chocolate.

Q. What is candlehead; gasoline and why is it called so? E. H. S.

A. Illuminating gas or natural gas comes from gas wells and cools as it leaves the earth; some of it condenses and forms a liquid. This is drawn off and is called candlehead gasoline.
It is used more volatile than any other gasoline.

Q. What is the derivation of the word renick? L. J. P.

A. This is a colloquial version of the word renick. This is derived from a Latin word which means "to deny." In card games it is a term sometimes applied to revoking—discarding or turning which fails to follow suit, when the rules of the game do not permit such play. In everyday affairs the term is applied to a person who is dishonest in negotiating an obligation or bargain.

Q. Where is the largest swimming pool in the world? C. O.

A. Madison Square Garden, New York city, claims the distinction of having the largest pool in the world.
Q. What was a church altar?

A. This was the predecessor of the church altar. It was a festive table, used upon some anniversary or annually. In England the gathering was in the churchyard or near the church, and the beverage served was ale.

Q. Will a round ball of wood float half out of the water? W. T. C.

A. A floating body displaces an amount of water equal in weight to its own weight. If the ball weighs exactly half as much as its corresponding volume of water it would float half submerged.

PENNSYLVANIA RY. HEAD WILL APPEAR BEFORE U. S. BOARD

power of the United States government will be exerted this time against capital as emphatically as it was a year ago against the railway shippers.

No Semantics With Board.

The truth is there is no sympathy here on the part of the landing administration with the attitude assumed by the Pennsylvania railroad toward the United States Railroad Labor board, and President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty have on many occasions in the last two years made this plain to Pennsylvania officials.

Only recently, moreover, the supreme court added the weight of its opinion to the position taken by the federal government in urging compliance with the provisions of the United States Railroad Labor board and Attorney General Daugherty have on many occasions in the last two years made this plain to Pennsylvania officials.

Deals With Own Employees.

The whole controversy has an interesting beginning. The labor board established rules and working conditions by authority of the transportation act. One of these rules was that labor could be represented in its negotiations for wages and working conditions by representatives of national labor unions served to intensify feeling between the railway employees and the employers, but the Pennsylvania board, and President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty have on many occasions in the last two years made this plain to Pennsylvania officials.

Pennsylvania Independent.

The Pennsylvania conducted its own election, which the labor board considered unfair, and it also found a flaw in the American Federation of Labor's method of balloting. The new election, under rules prescribed by the labor board, was never held, because the Pennsylvania went into the federal courts and succeeded in tying up the question for nearly two years. But the supreme court decision has sustained the labor board's right to order an election and the case of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers and Express Station Employees is the first test. The latter has asked for a new election and the labor board invites Mr. Ron to appear before the board, which he refuses to do, though he realizes he can be compelled by legal process to give testimony.

States Moral Grounds.

The supreme court, however, endeavored to approach the question not from the viewpoint of legal rights to either party, but from moral

at grounds, stating the case as follows:

"The counsel for the company insist the right to deal with individual representatives of the employees as to rules and working conditions is an inherent right which cannot be constitutionally taken from it. The employees, at least those who are members of the labor union, contend they have a lawful right to select their own representatives, and that it is not within the right of the company to restrict them in their selection of employees of the company or to forbid selection of officers of their labor unions qualified to deal with, and protect their interests. This statute (the transportation act) certainly does not deprive either side of the rights claimed."

Board of Arbitration.

"But title three of the transportation act was not enacted to provide tribunals to determine what were the legal rights and obligations of railway employers and employees or to enforce or protect them. Courts can do that. The labor board was created to decide how the parties ought to exercise their legal rights so as to enable them to co-operate in running the railroad. It was to reach a fair compromise between the parties without regard to the legal rights upon which each side might insist in a court of law. The board is to act as a board of arbitration. It is to give expression to its views of the moral obligation of each side as members of society to agree upon a basis for co-operation in the work of running the railroad in the public interest."

Only Moral Constraint.

"The jurisdiction of the board to direct the parties to do what it deems they should do ought to be limited by the constitutional or legal right to refuse to do it. Under the act there is no constraint upon them to do what the board decides they should do, except the moral constraint already mentioned, or publication of its decisions."

The Railroad Labor board did reach a decision that the Pennsylvania railroad, in refusing to accept the formula for an election to determine employee representatives was in violation of the decrees of the board, but the Pennsylvania obtained an injunction against the publication of that decision, an injunction which the highest court of the land now has thrown out. So the case goes back to the beginning. If the Pennsylvania sticks to its position that it will deal only with its own employees and recognize only the company organization, the labor board will have to publish the fact of the Pennsylvania's defiance to the whole country, trusting in the influence of public opinion to compel a change of attitude on the part of the railroad.

Board Can Decide.

The labor board doesn't say the Pennsylvania must recognize national labor unions, but that it should deal with the men elected by the employees. But the supreme court made a particular point of this, declaring:

"The statute does not require the railway company to recognize or deal with, or confer with labor unions. It does not require employees to deal with their employer through their fellow employees. But we think it does vest the labor board with power to decide how such representatives ought to be chosen with a view to securing a satisfactory co-operation and leaves it to the two sides to accept or reject the decision."

The Pennsylvania railroad feels it is making satisfactory progress through the company union plan and has just announced an increase in wages of two cents an hour higher for railway shippers than the wage fixed by the labor board. This is said to be in line with the fixed policy of the Pennsylvania in endeavoring to prove to its employees that they can get even better wages and better working conditions by dealing directly with the Pennsylvania than through the agency of the American Federation of Labor. The leaders of the latter say it is simply an effort to break down unionism, and when once the power of labor is shattered wages will be fixed arbitrarily and the workers will not have sufficient power to resist.

Await Next Move.

The next step of the labor board will be watched with intense interest here, for a new election on the Pennsylvania is likely to be ordered. Then the question arises again—whether the Pennsylvania will refuse to obey now as in the past.

McDowell Club Is Sponsoring Gogg Recital

The MacDowell club, which stands for such high ideals in music and which has sponsored so many excellent concerts here the past few years, is hoping for a large turnout at its next recital in the Congregational church at 8:15 p. m., Monday. The club has procured Miss Selma Gogg, dramatic soprano of the Chicago Little Symphony, for Monday night's program and Miss Esther Muller, Chicago, will be her accompanist. Critics throughout this section of the country speak highly of the beautiful voice of Miss Gogg and those in Janesville who have heard her are working to get a large attendance. One of the best musical treats of this season, historic in local concert circles, is promised by the MacDowell club.

GOLDEN RULE IS WORKING WELL AT NEW HIGH SCHOOL

"Do to others as you would have them do to you" is a rule used considerably at the high school, and which makes classes run a great deal better than they otherwise would. Now it is used in respect to classes passing while others are in session. Several times during the day junior high school classes, on a different schedule than seniors, pass while senior classes are in session or in assembly. The opposite is also true, and seniors pass after assembly while juniors are in study hall and class-rooms. Therefore during these passages, all pupils are requested not to talk and an observer at the building during these times would see there is little apparent desire to be noisy. At other times, when all classes pass together, no restrictions are placed on communication. It is all part of the honor system that is being worked out at the school.

RELIEF SECRETARY SAILS

New York—Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, sailed for Europe Tuesday to seek from representatives of the League of Nations and the allied governments further aid in solving the refugee situation, which he declared, was taxing the resources of his organization to the utmost.

PARTIES FROM 3 FAR-OFF STATES AT TOURIST CAMP

Something unusual for a tourist camp for so early in the year was noted at Janesville's free camping grounds, North Washington street and Magnolia avenue, Tuesday night, when carloads of tourists from three sections of the country the farthest from Janesville were seen. There was one car from New York, another from Chicago and the last from California. All three parties spent the night at the camp and continued on their tours, Wednesday.

St. Peter's Lutheran church has a total enrollment of 346 confirmed members and total receipts for the past year were $4,904 for local expenses and $510 for benevolence, according to officers' reports made at the annual meeting of the church membership, Tuesday night. It was decided to institute a canvass of the congregation for the debt fund pledges. L. P. Rasmussen was elected chairman of the canvassing committee.

Deacons and Trustees were elected for two years as follows: William Buchholz, George Meyer, and Walter Schultz.

Walter Schultz was elected delegate to the synod in Minneapolis. The Rev. G. J. Muller is pastor of St. Peter's church.

SECOND FROLIC AT RIVERSIDE PARK

The second organization to make use of Riverside Park, since it became city property, was the Christian Endeavor society of the First Christian church. Fifty persons were entertained at a weiner roast Tuesday night. Most of the party took the street car to the park entrance and hiked to a picnic site a short distance beyond the pavilion. Games were played after supper. Songs around the camp fire and the hike back to the car line by moonlight at 8 p. m. ended the program.

VAN GALDER TAKES OVER CHECKER CABS

Merle Van Galder, who has been with the Checker Cab company in Janesville since it was organized, became sole owner of the business through a deal completed, Wednesday, whereby he takes over the interests of his two partners, Henry Lawrenee and George Kapetana. Headquarters of the line will be moved from the Central cafe, 121 West Milwaukee street, to the Condon Transfer office, 511 Wall street.
